An out-of-door convenience...

Convenient at all times, it is out-of-doors, on wintry days especially that a wrist watch proves its worth... A flick of the wrist, a glance, and the hour is known... If you do not now enjoy the comfort such a watch brings, you have a pleasure in store. The cost may be whatever you wish, depending upon your preference.

Banking and Commerce

By G. G. McGEER, K.C., M.L.A.

Herewith is another installment of the evidence given by G. G. McGeer, K.C., M.L.A., of Vancouver, before the Banking Committee of the House of Commons. The evidence has been given in part before, but this is the first time it has ever been given in its entirety by any newspaper. The article started on the June 25 issue of The Bulletin—EDITOR.

I think it was John Maynard Keynes who put that touch of sarcasm in there.

If we had more complete knowledge both scientific and statistical of what is going on in our economic system, it might be possible to act sooner with greater advantage, to correct aberrations before they have gone too far and thus keep business and enterprise on a more level keel.

It would be better (it is too good) to develop greater power of diagnosis, and not to depend so much on comparatively late appearing symptoms.

The banker acts too late. That is how the thing comes out, and that is what the Banking Committee on to write this section of the report—Bank rate policy is quite a proper instrument, not only for the correction of temporary disequilibrium in the international loan market, but also for regulating the space of expansion and enterprise at home and for putting pressure on the foreign market to conform themselves to changes in our relative situation or in the international price level. But it is only adequate by itself for such purposes within certain limits.

They acknowledge that the monetary system would not do the things that must be done on the departmental economic control. Now, here is what it does.

When substantial changes in the level of our industrial activity are necessary to correspond to substantial changes in the value of money, changes in bank rate alone cannot hope to achieve all that is necessary. In such a case, however necessary it may be that bank rate policy should be employed to maintain the international equilibrium of our currency, some other supplementary measure must be found to restore equilibrium. For consider how bank rate policy works in such a case. The effort to minimize the output and employment are contracted. It depends on decreasing the amount of business profits and increasing unemployment to whatever figure is necessary to decrease their cost of production, economies or to insist on, and their workers to accept lower wages. But public opinion forces them to accept a lower wage. And the reduction of output and employment will fall unequally and unfairly on the sections of the community who are least protected by contract. Least able to defend themselves, and often least able to afford the sacrifice.

TODAY'S SITUATION

And here is the situation today described by the committee.

Moreover, those who are in control of our monetary system will naturally and exclusively be reluctant to carry through such a policy. It is a policy of conclusion, with the result that we may continue for a long period in a depressed condition with high unemployment and yet without enough of both to compel by force majeure the necessary readjustment of incomes. Moreover, once such a condition of depression has become firmly established, a policy of readjustment will no longer be necessary to ensure its continuance; for it will remain within itself the seeds of its own perpetuation.

Now, what is report saying there is exactly what we are experiencing. Your bankers come in and tell you there is only one remedy, tighten your belts and wait for aid from overseas. You have heard that before. Out in Vancouver, we have seen out every dollar that has been put in real estate in that city. I venture to say—and I do not care to mention other places, but from what I read in the newspapers—that that is very similar to the situation in the city of Montreal.

Supposing British Columbia default on a city default, what happens to the holders of the bonds that community? Why, they are not of necessity, dry in the market. That constitutes a crisis for the holders of that type of security. That, you say, is not the case. The banker from getting too much credit out, the remedy is to devalue that he really has no power to correct the situation; he must have some supplementary force. And you must yourself him from putting bank deposits and bank points and inflating debts and debt.

BY Mr. GEARY

CREDIT-CURRENCY POSITION

By Mr. McGeer, do I judge from that last sentence of your report that you think there is now quite a great deal of credit distribution from currency?

A might I put up a chart upon that particular point, Mr. Geary? I do not know whether you see that or not, but can give it to you.

credit, if I am to put it that way?

A. Yes.

Q. I think you also stated, that there was a danger that there might be inflation under that, and that would correct that by the exercise of taxation—A. Yes, sir.

Q. Would you say that that would enter into the contemplation of the proposition which would lead to some control of taxation, if you like, to form an opinion as to when inflation takes place, and if at what point do you think inflation would take place, and at what point corrective taxation could be applied? Perhaps I might as well ask all of my questions at once and perhaps you will answer them.

A. I am not sure, but I think the credit which has to be issued by this national bank, which I assume would be publicly owned, would be put to the people in the same way as it is proposed in the United States, and which we have now through the present chartered banks, or would this national bank, which you propose deal directly with the public? Another question—

A. Just a minute, Mr. Kuler, you are putting a lot of questions.

A. You say, first, when would you want direct working with your department of economic control and your department of taxation begin to put on the brakes?

GOVT. CREDIT EXCEEDS

Q. Exactly—A. To prevent inflation, right from the beginning. Instead of flooding out excessive credit, it would be got enough in circulation to pay your debt, you have enough debt—municipal, provincial and national now, to bring our standard down, your credit burden could be reduced gradually without inflation causes and danger.

The Right Hon. Mr. Borden brought to the attention of the Canadian people, I think in last year's annual meeting of Barclay's Bank, the fact that the cost of government in this Dominion is the exact total income of the Canadian people, that is, the cost of municipal, provincial and national government, and I think that he was quoting an investigation group of men from the Chamber of Commerce of Montreal.

I am not sure, but I think he was quoting the figures of their investigation, now shows that your cost of government exceeds your income. Now, there is no necessity of using the power to issue credit to flood the country with money. You can't do that.

Q. When did the flood begin?—A. I say that under this system you can break the depression in two or four hours. Now, people laugh at that, they laugh because they do not understand how easy it is to do it. It is a very simple matter to declare tomorrow our people would go to work using national credit, and we would break any country, or we would build our defences to prevent any country from attacking by putting our people to work, and we would be the best of medium of exchange to do it.

CUBS MARK UP SIX RUNS

PAID BY BILL LEWIS

With the start of the provincial Open and Amateur championships only a week from today, attention of Edmonton golfers is being turned towards the final big golf event of the season, which will be held at the Country Club this year. . . . Last summer, young Stew. Vickers of Calgary captured the title, but local enthusiasts are hopefully looking forward to an Edmonton triumph this season. . . . There are some strong contenders ready here, but Calgary, likewise, can be relied upon to have worthy representation at the meet. . . .

You will find plenty of a firm belief in the fact that the golfing of Joe Pratt, Prime Minister of the Open, while Jack Cuthbert, now pro at Calgary Golf and Country Club, will also have plenty of support. . . . It will be the familiar round for Cuthbert, for it was at the local Country Club he played as an amateur before accepting the appointment as pro in the south. . . .

Don Conklin's Cubs made a start towards reaching their objective of overtaking the leaders in the Senior Baseball League race last night when they whipped South Side Athletics by a score of 6-2. . . . None of the teams hoping to gain a playoff berth can afford to drop many games from here on, for there is going to be a real scramble for the right to meet Shastas in the finals and it will all be decided by the remaining games of the schedule. . . .

Mortine last night, officers of the Senior league upheld the protest of Webb King's Royals over a decision of the umpires in their game with Shastas Tuesday. While they agreed on this part of it, they could not decide whether the game should be entirely replayed or started again from the point where the error occurred. . . . Consequently, the St. Louis Sporting News, etc.

Mark Up Six Runs In Eighth To Beat Athletics By 9-2

South Side Keeps Close Until Big Uprising In Eighth; Wilkie Twirls Fine Relief Ball.

Scoring six runs in the eighth inning after leading 3-2 from early in the fray, Don Conklin's Cubs whipped South Side Athletics by a 9-2 count in their Senior Baseball League encounter at Riverside Park last night. . . .

In so doing, South Side took a firm hold in third place and did a lot towards closing the gap that separates them from the leadership at present held by Royals, with Shastas in second place. . . .

From first to last, Cubs had really by two much power for the Scena crew last night. While Herman Conklin kept his team in the running until the fatal big inning, they managed to score five solid runs off him in that one stanza to clinch the win. . . .

Clayton B. Brown, colored mound, started on the hill for the Cubs but he was replaced with none out in the second frame, after the first three men to face him had been struck out. . . .

Murray Murdoch's Shastas will oppose the Cubs in the Senior Baseball League game at Riverside Park tonight, starting at 8:30 o'clock sharp. . . .

Right now, Cubs are making a determined effort to gain leadership of the second half of the league race, which will decide the team to meet Shastas in the playoffs. . . .

Manager Don Conklin will be the pitching for Cubs, while George Guidetti will twirl for Shastas. . . .

SCONAS BEAT LOWLY CUBS BY BIG SCORE

South Siders Strengthen Lineup, Winning by 20-14 Margin. Henry DeVal's Sconas were back in the win column today as a result of their 20-14 victory over the lowly Cubs, which they defeated in a scheduled encounter of the City Girls' Baseball League at Boyle Street Thursday evening. . . .

The encounter, which was witnessed by a large crowd of spectators, turned out to be a free-hitting and long-landing affair and Sconas' batsmen, the usual brand of ball witnessed in the league were displayed at distant intervals. . . .

Presenting five new players on their roster, the Sconas club looked better last night than they have for their past four performances, and it was largely due to the play of the newcomers that they managed to score their victory. . . .
